Forecast for Saturday 18 Jun 2022

Weather: Murky to start the day with hill fog and spells of light rain and drizzle. An increasing risk of rain into the afternoon, turning heavy and persistent at times. The rain continuing through the evening before easing in the final few hours of the day. The very low risk of a thunderstorm in association with the rain.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 20% to begin the day, gradually rising to 60% for the later evening.

Low cloud and visibility: Extensive cloud with bases 400-600m will cover many routes through the morning. Cloud bases gradually lifting through the afternoon to 1000m but still with occasional reductions to 600m during the later evening. Despite the cloud lifting, visibility will remain poor throughout much of the day with outbreaks of heavy rain remaining above the summits but occasionally lowering to around 600m in association with the heavy rain.
